BUILD A TEAM

Finance

- Will affect the entire organization, so include people at a high level

Legal

- Will affect contract interpretations
- Terms of art are changing – it's all about 'control'

Sales

- Will impact sales negotiations

IT

- Will probably impact systems

FIRST THINGS FIRST: ANALYZE YOUR CONTRACTS

Develop a list of criteria for your evaluation process:

- To combine, or not to combine
  - Is this several contracts, or just one?
- Identify the obligations
  - VSOE is dead; long live performance obligations
- Consider consideration
  - Milestone payments may now be considered variable
- Consider the past
  - Have you historically granted concessions?
- Consider the future
  - Contract modifications, wording in new contracts

WHAT ELSE?

Sales = related contracts

- Warranties
- Rebates and incentives
- Advance payments

Other contracts

- Compensation agreements
  - Bonuses or other compensation based on revenue
- Debt agreements
  - Covenants may be affected
- Leases
  - Scoped out, but you may have contingent rents based on revenue

ONE OF THE TWO CERTAINTIES IN LIFE...

Taxes

- Will likely change your temporary differences
- Will probably need new policies and procedures for tax accounting
- Could affect your sales tax process if you're recharacterizing revenue between sales and services
- Outside investment in foreign subsidiaries – will likely change outside basis, need to reevaluate your indefinite investment criteria
- TRANSFER PRICING

PCAOB STAFF AUDIT PRACTICE ALERT NO. 12

Audit revenue recognition performance issues were reported on Sept. 9, 2014:

- Understanding of arrangements and verification of revenue recognition alignment with contracts was not sufficient
- Failure to recognize when the audit client was a principal seller or an agent
- Testing of revenue cutoff was insufficient
- Revenue disclosure information was sufficient
- Insufficient procedures around the detection of revenue reporting fraud

AUDIT FIRMS' REACTIONS TO PCAOB REPORTED DEFICIENCIES

- Auditors have expanded their work scope
- Number of required controls has often increased
- More evidence is required to prove control performance
- Basis for management decisions is regularly questioned
- Audit of controls is more intense and no longer permits:
  - Inquiry and observation of no change in controls
  - Reliance on substantive procedures as controls evidence
  - Relying on prior year audit knowledge and experience
- Extrapolation of sample location testing now requires proof of consistent system and controls at all locations
- An extremely high level of assurance is required

REVENUE RECOGNITION CONTROLS IMPACTED – MANAGEMENT REVIEW CONTROLS

- Revenue recognition's Management Review Controls (MRC) must be identified and evaluated for completeness and relevance
- Revenue recognition criteria must be defined in controls
- Control information sources must be validated
- Revenue recognition control precision must be identified
- Reliance on revenue recognition MRCs can be challenging

REVENUE RECOGNITION CONTROLS IMPACTED – SYSTEM GENERATED DATA AND REPORTS

- All relevant data and elements used in the performance of revenue recognition controls must be identified
- Risks related to the use of system generated data and revenue control reports must be identified
- Management should identify controls covering the completeness and accuracy of each data element used determining revenue recognition amounts
- IT General Controls (ITGCs) must be in place and functioning properly for each revenue recognition key control

COMPLIANCE RISK AREAS

1. ENFORCEABLE RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS

- We must prove our customer arrangements create enforceable rights and obligations
- Risks:
  - Do we completely apply and document approval and commitment controls to parties across all agreements?
  - Are our rights and payment terms clearly defined?
  - How do we prove transactions have commercial substance to our auditors?
  - What documented evidence can we produce to show collectability is probable at the inception of our deals?

2. OBLIGATION TO TRANSFER GOODS OR SERVICE

- We must demonstrate a contractual obligation to transfer goods or services
- Risks:
  - How will our controls address obligations to transfer goods or services in sales that do not involve contracts?
  - What precision will we apply in our controls to distinguish distinct goods or services when assessing specific obligations under an agreement?

3. DETERMINING TRANSACTION PRICE

- Proof of transaction price must be evident to show agreed upon consideration for exchange for transferring goods or services
- Risks:
  - How is variable consideration measured for controlling amounts to be recognized?
  - What method of estimation do we use for claims and liquidated damages reporting controls?
  - How is probability of variable consideration measured?

4. ALLOCATE THE TRANSACTION PRICE

- Our controls must ensure accurate transaction price allocation, for multiple obligation agreements, using stand alone selling prices
- Risks:
  - What criteria do we use to distinguish standalone obligations across all of our contracts?
  - How do we determine standalone selling prices for contract price allocations controls?

5. WHEN TO RECOGNIZE REVENUE

- We must ensure revenue is recognized when (or as) the entity satisfies a performance obligation by transferring the goods or services to a customer
- Risks:
  - How do our controls measure when the customer obtains control of the asset or service?
  - What criteria do we apply to measure revenue earned when we create or enhance an asset the customer controls?
